Pakistani President begins consultations

Benazir will get the first chance to form cabinet

ISLAMABAD, Nov 22, (Agencies): Populist leader Benazir Bhutto and her conservative rival, Nawaz Sharif, met separately with Pakistan's President Ghulam Ishaq Khan today to discuss the formation of a government.

Ishaq Khan told a cabinet meeting yesterday that be has decided Benazir should be given the first chance to form the next government, official sources

Four senior government sourees speaking in separate interviews said Ishaq Khan acknowledged to the cabinet that Benazir had enough support from independents and small parties to command a National Assembly majority.

Chance

The sources said Ishaq Khan expressed the opinion that she must be asked to put together the next administration before any other political leader.

"Benazir should be given the first chance to form a govern-ment," one source quoted the President as saying. Benazir arrived in Islamabad from the southern port of Karachi to be greeted by thousands of cheering supporters at the air-port. She went straight to the presidential palace for a meeting with Ishao Khan.

The President also met with awaz Sharif, bead of the Islamic Democratic Alliance, a government-backed coalition, and is to meet leaders of smaller parties and groups over the next three days to discuss the next Benazir has consistently main-tained that the President has "no choice" but to ask her to form the next government based on the results and that she further had the support of enough indepen-dents and small parties to command a majority.

However, Sharif, Chief Mini-ster of Punjab province and the most senior IDA leader to win a seat, claims he can form a broadbased federal government, "minus the PPP."

Mulroney returned to office with reduced majority

TORONTO, Nov 22, (Agencies): Prime Minister Brian Mnironcy called today for national healing after voters returned him to office with a weakened majority government that nonetheless protected the US-Canada free trade pact.

Mulroney's Progressive Conservative Party won yesterday's national election as Canadians accepted the "Leap of faith" that the 10-year deal to eliminate all remaining trade barriers with their southern neighbour was good for the country.

Compared

It was the first time since 1953 that a party won consecutive majority governments, and the first time this century for the Conservatives. But it was a slimmer margin for Mulroney than in 1984, when he led the Conservatives to one of the most impressive landslides in CanIn the newly expanded 295-seat House of Commons, the Conservatives won 169 seats yesterday as compared to 211 ont of 282 seats in the 1984 election.

Official figures with 95 per cent of the vote counted showed the opposition Liberal Party, led by John Turner, with 82 seats, more than double its 40 of four years ago, and the socialist New-Democratic Party of Ed Broadbent with 44 seats, up from 30.

Both Turner and Broadbent vehemently opposed the trade pact, signed Jan 2 by Mulroney and US President Reagan, say-ing Canada would be beholden to America. The pact, passed by the US Congress, requires ratification by Canada's Parliament.

In another run, they hit a onestorey sleeping quarters of Arafat's men only 50 metres (vards) away, set amid orange groves near a main road linking Ain Al Hilweh to Sidon.

Both bases were levelled by the 15-minute raid during which the jets and helicopters unleashed some 14 rockets.

Trapped

The sources said the raid killed a Palestinian guerrilla and wounded seven. Four other guerrillas, still trapped under the rubble of one position, were feared dead. Some of the rockets blasted two jeep-mounted anti-aircraft guns at the outskirts of Ain Al

The military parades, one revi-ewed by Sunni Muslim General Sami Al Khatih and the other by Christian Army commander General Michel Aoun, highlighted the rift between the factions.

Aoun was appointed by out-going Maronite Christian President Amin Gemayel in September to head an interim government until parliament can elect a new head of state.

But Selim Hoss, a Sunni

The National Day processions, one in East and the other in West Beirut, started with the national anthem and both Khatib and Aoun laying wreaths at monuments to fallen soldiers.

Smart, well-drilled Christian soldiers armed with US-made M-16 rifles marched past as ageing British-built Hawker Hunter jets and French-designed Puma and Gazelle helicopters flew overhead.

The Muslim parade nearly matched the Christian one in organisation, but lacked the sophisticated weaponry, equip-ment and trained troops of the rival procession. Military bands played as flags fluttered on each side of the Green Line.

Addressing his mainly Muslim troops, Khatih said: "We are responsible for protecting Lebanon's border, dignity.

GCC defence ministers meet to plot strategy

RIYADH, Nov 22, (Reuter): After 10 days of joint military exercises testing their forces' mettle, Gulf defence ministers gathered in Riyadh today to discuss modernising and upgrading their military capability.

The six Gulf Co-operation Council (GCC) ministers are meeting for the first time since the Aug 20 ceasefire in the Gulf war between Iran and Iraq.

Secretary-General Abdullah Bishara told an opening session of talks between the six-nation group's ministers that effective measures were needed to face any future threats

"The talks will be in harmony with the region's security realities and though they have improved, fluctuations still remain possible. Alertness is needed and effective measures are necessary, Bishara said.

"The time for relaxation has not come yet ... and joint preparation is the decisive res-ponse to possible surprises." Kuwait's Defence Minister, Sheikh Nawaf Al Ahmed Al

Psychiatry used to repress dissidents: Soviet doctor

MOSCOW, Nov 22, (Agencies): Soviet psychiatry was sys-tematically used in the 1970s to suppress dissidents by declaring them mentally ill and committing them to asylums, a doctor has written in the first article printed by state-run media to acknowledge such abuses.

"The leadership was content: In our country, there were no dissidents — there were only insane people," Mikhail I. Buyanov, a psychiatrist and neurologist, wrote in his historical survey of Soviet psychiatry, published by the educational newspaper Uchitelskaya Gazeta.

Human rights activists in the Soviet Union and abroad have alleged for years that the Kremlin used psychiatric bospitals to incarcerate dissidents who were in fact mentally healthy. Some say the practice began under Josef V. Stalin or Nikita S.

Bihar police accused of human rights violations

NEW DELHI, Nov 22, (AP): Amnesty International today accused the police in the eastern state of Bihar of beating, raping and fatally torturing people in custody.

A report, released by the Lon-don-based human rights organisation, accused Bihar police of "deliberate unlawful killings and Amnesty International said the victims included landless labourers campaigning for minmum wages and land reform.

The report mentioned an incident in April 1986 in which police fired on a public meeting in the village of Arwal. At least 23 civilians were killed. The meeting was organised by a left-wing group to support claims to a piece of land by nine villagers.

Probe starts into killing by Saddam's son

BAGHDAD, Nov 22, (Renter): Iraq's justice minister set investigators working today on the case of President Saddam Hussein's eldest son, ordered by his father to stand trial for killing a presidential servant.

Akram Abdul Qadir Al Douri appointed two prominent judges and a public prosecutor to begin the probe, after Saddam asked him yesterday for a "proper investigation and trial" of his 24year-old son Odai, now being held in jail.

Last month's killing, whispered about for some time, became a subject for open debate among some Iraqis today. Saddam, 51, aroused sympathy among numerous traque with the wording of his message to Al Douri, broadcast on Baghdad Radio Choose,

Arafat and Mubarak hold marathon round of talks

US urged to take a progressive step

CAIRO, Nov 22, (Agencies): President Hosni Mubarak and PLO leader Yasser Arafat have urged the United States to take what Arafat called a "progressive step" in response to the PLO's acceptance of UN resolutions that include an implicit recognition of Israel.

But the two conceded this will take time, with Mubarak warning that all parties must make "sacrifices and concessions."

Mubarak and Arafat spoke to reporters after a marathon round of talks last night focusing on the Arabs' next move following the PLO's proclamation of an independent Palestinian state.

Arafat said they discussed future moves to give a strong push to the peace effort" in the direction of the Arabs' common goal — an international con-ference to lay down the foundations of a Middle East peace set-

NEW DELHI, Nov 22, (UPI): Prime Minister Rajiv Gandhi, following the weekend visit of Soviet leader Mikhail Gorbachev, has said India's relations with China have no bearing on Indian-Soviet ties, the Press

Rajiv's statement in

chev's Saturday advice that New Delhi and Beijing settle their longstanding disputes so the two Asian giants can work with Mos-cow m solving the problems of the region.

Analysts said Gorbachev's comments, coming only weeks in advance of Rajiv's scheduled visit to Beijing, were a clear message that Moscow plans to nor-malise relations with China.

Rajiv said that as far as relations between India and the Seviet Union are concerned. "China is unimportant," PTI said.

"Sino-Soviet and Sino-Indian relations are purely exclusive," the agency quoted Rajiv as saying. "There is no question of one being at the cost of the other or Chinese talks on our border were not discussed as such," Rajiv said. "The two situations are totally different and I doo't think you can compare them." A Sino-Indian rapprochement hinges on solving two protracted border disputes between the world's most populous nations. The two nations have been at odds since a brief 1962 war along their Himalayan border.

China bolds 14,500 square miles (37,700 sq. km) of territory claimed by India in the remote Aksai Chin region of the western Himalayas. Beijing wants New Delhi to yield 56,000 square miles (145,600 sq. km) of Arunachal Pradesh state in the eastern Himalayas, claiming the region historically and eulturally belongs to Tibet.

Sri Lankan brutally beaten

Abuse of maids increasing

By Fathima Ahmed

"I CAN'T think of any reason for anyone to beat me," said 22year-old Sri Lankan maid Suseela Padmaseeli, the latest victim of maid bashing in Kuwait. Severely beaten with a hose, her nose bleeding and hands and ears swollen, Suseela yesterday fled from her employer's home in Salmiya and took refuge in her embassy.

"I fled from the two-room flat and didn't know where to go. I was standing on the street and crying when a passer-by picked me up and hrought me to the Sri Lankan embassy," she said yesterday, with a look of despair in her tearful eyes.

She is the second such victim in as many weeks this month. Earlier this month, another maid sought refuge after her ear was bitten hy her Egyptian employer.

"Brutal treatment of maids has increased in the last four to five years, simply because people not accustomed to hired help are employing maids," said one Apparently, hiring a maid has become fashionable and a status symbol. And beating maids, a pastime.

"Some of the present employers are here to eke out a living; they are not used to looking after the needs - physical and mental - of another human being; they (some employers) are maniacs," be explained.

Previously, incidents such as Suscela's, though not totally

Molestation, however, has always been a dominant problem

A victim of her Egyptian teacher employer, Suscela claims she has been tortured and beaten up for the last one and-a-half months. She arrived in Kuwait three months ago. Underfed, overworked and emaciated, she had been putting up with the severe beatings "because I have nowhere else to go."

Yesterday morning, she fled because "I could not take it any longer. She (the employer) came back from work and beat me up, but she never beat me before her husband," she said.

"I was fed only one meal a day - at 3 or 4 pm - each day; if I asked for more food, I was told to finish the work," she said.

Assault is a criminal offence in Kuwait. Over 10 severely beaten maids seek refuge at the Sri Lankan embassy each month. A similar number report rape and between 75 and 150 seek help to recover their dues. Nonpayment of salary and beatings are also reported hy Indian maids. Filipino domestics also face similar problems.

But Kuwaiti women, freed from household chores by their country's tremendous oil wealth. are clamouring for work and education. They appear to find more money, greater personal fulfilment and less resistance in private business

"Not only are the wages higher, but the ladder for accelerating is faster in the private sector than in the civil service," says Reem Al Ghunaim, herself president and founder-owner of a firm which imports chemicals.

Muna and Khalida both represent their fathers on the board of Al Khonaini Al Qatami Trading and Contracting Co. which imports yachts, machinery and home furnishings. It was a natural joh for both.

"My father has no boys and eight daughters," said Khalida.

"When I left the Ministry of Health in 1982, he insisted I come to the company to at least share in management and planning."

All seven of her sisters have university degrees. Five are also in husiness. Alia runs a silver boutique, Yusra and Wafaa are bankers, and Abiya and Maha handle portfolios for the Kuwait Investment Authority and the Kuwait International Investment Corp.

Independence Muna, 31, grew up listening to her father's business conversations and developed a passion for commerce. Secretarial shifts in a ministry were not for her. I SUPPOSE we all make mistakes. Backstage is an enormous mistake made by a surprising amount of people. This mistake was put together by no less than two associate producers, three executive producers, one co-producer and a producer. This is a film where the number of producers is only beaten by the number of cliches.

There is also a musical consultant for this film, Laura Branigan. I feel that she should beforgiven for this, because her sins in her role as Kate Lawrence are so very much greater. This is the equivalent of letting the mass murderer off the charge of double parking.

Backstage is a story about a rock star, Laura Branigan, who

A comic treat

By Shaun Seekins

THIS week sees the release of two Anglo-American comedies, A Fish Called Wanda and Consuming Passions. The two films have a kind of link in the sense that Michael Palin acted in the former and wandards. in the former and wrote the original story for the latter in collaboration with Terry Jones. That is where the comparison ends. Wanda is a comic treat in the best tradition of the Ealing studios, whereas Consuming Passions resembles a couple of rejected Monty Python sket-ches from the 1960's and now resuscitated on the strength of the writer's subsequent fame and fortune.

A Fish Called Wanda was reviewed earlier this week, so I will refrain from a repetition of the story, suffice it to say that it is a marvellous film which sends the Brits up beantifully, whilst casting a baleful light on the Americans.

Consuming Passions is set in a timeless Northern Britain, where people say both "groovy" and "okay yah" and a Morris Minor nestles alongside a Porsche in the executive car park. Hopeful management trainee (Tyler Butterworth) arrives to take up a new job at Chumley's Chocolates. After accidentally depositing three workers in the factory vat (thereby, unwittingly, creating a taste sensation), Ian rises and rises up the corporate ladder. The chocolates inevitably need more body so Ian's life becomes a dizzy round of collecting dis-posable corpses and looking after the less-than-grieving widow (Vanessa Redgrave) of one of the ex-workers. Licence To Drive is a new American teenage comedy which concentrates on the fanatical desire of a 16-year-old boy to get his licence by any means so that be can impress the girl be fancies.

Islamisation bill

DHAKA: Several months after Bangladesh's Parliament declared Islam as the state religioo, the effects of the policy remain amorphous. The main steps so far include vague calls for compulsory religious educatioo and setting up a commission to "Islamise" the nation's cul-

But the political debate over President Hussein Muhammad Ershad's designation of Islam as the state religion has not died

In pushing the bill, Ershad angered both the political left and right, and appeared to be borrowing a page from the book of another South Asian strong man—the late President of Pakistan. Mohammed Zia-ul-Haq. Under the mantle of forging an Islamic society, Zia had focused oo refashioning the ecocomy and the inherited Western legal code according to Quranic law (sharia).

Ershad's critics draw a parallel with Zia's efforts to undercut his maio rival, Benazir Bhutto. Like his counterpart, they say, Ershad is using religioo as a political initiative to quiet his fractious political opposition, which is dominated by two womeo

Blocking

Women's rights activists charge that Ershad's programme is aimed at blocking democratic reforms and barring from office Sheikh Hasina Wajed, daughter of the country's assassinated first president, and Begum Khaleda Zia, widow of a slain military ruler.

Yet, the parallels with Pakistan likely will stop there. For one... thing, Ershad, who took power in a coup six years ago, appears to lack the religious zeal and credibility which Zia used to appeal to Pakistan's conservative Muslims. Even among those who favour sharia, Ershad's programme has its detractors. "General Ershad is not committed to the Islamic state the way Zia was," says Muhammad Kamaruzzaman, an official with the fundamentalist party, Jamaat-c-Islami Ban-gladesh.

Another key factor, observers say, is that Bangladeshis practise a more laid-back Islam in which extremes are oot likely to gain

"Ershad scored a political win by isolating his opposition," says an Asian diplomat in Dhaka. "Bot the people here are laissezfaire Muslims. Islamisatioo woo't be as effective as in Pakis-

Hindus, Christians, and other minority groups who grouped together to oppose the bill, however, say they fear persecution by the Muslim majority. Mullahs. Muslim religious leaders, are powerful io the villages and could impose a more strident brand of Islam in the countryside. "There are fears that Islamisatioo will bring new persecutioo," says a Western Christian missiooary working

Like much of the Muslim world, Bangladesh has been influenced by Islamic fundameotalism that grew out of Iran's 1979 revolutioo. Also, thousands of Bangladeshis lured to the Middle East by the oil boom of the late 1970s have returned home with new ideas about the role of Islam in society.

Opposition

Ershad's plan also has drawn stiff opposition from women's groups who oppose uranic measures, such as allowing men to take more than one wife, that they say would demote women to a second-class status.

But the fears of widespread persecution of minorities have not been borne out. About 20 per cent of Bangladesh's 110 million people are Hindus, compared to less than five per cent in Pakistan. Pakistan, which once iocluded what is now Bangladesh, was founded as an Islamic homeland for the subcontinent's Muslims when British-ruled India was partitioned in 1947. After the 1971 war of independence, Bangladesh became a secular state. 1 ne vernment later incor porated Islamic measures ioto the constitution, but stoped short of declaring Islam the state

Many US officials and analysts were surprised the election went as well it did. Zia was killed in a mysterious plane crash last Aug 17 that look the life of US ambassador Arnold Rafael and 28 others.

Zia was Benazir's adversary. He ousted her father, Zulfikar Ali Bhutto, in 1977 as prime minister and later executed him.

Relations between the United States and Pakistan, which were strained in the 1970s, prospered after the Soviet Union despatched troops to neighbouring Afghanistan in 1979. Contact Washington sent weapons to Pakistan and Zia proved a loyal ally, serving as the conduit for US aid to mujahideen rebels fighting Soviet troops and their allies in Afghanistan.

US officials, who were in contact with Benazir before the election, seem convinced she will continue that policy. Selig Harrison, a senior associate with the Carnegie Endowment for International Peace who met Benazir in Karachi last June, told Reuters US-Pakistan ties under her rule could even be better than under Zia.

This would be due in part to the fact that Benazir is more flexible than her predecessor on a new government in Kabul, he said.

Refugees Zia had insisted oo an Islamic fundamentalist government to succeed the communists and argued Afghan refugees could not return to Afghanistan until it was in place.

Benazir, by contrast, has no such demand, seeking only stable, representative government,

"She doesn't favour a communist regime oor would she favour cutting aid to the resistance before the Soviets with. draw" but is eager to have the refugees return home, he added

Harrison also says that Ben. azir is less determined to forge ahead with nuclear arms development in Pakistan, something that has greatly worried Congress and prompted law. makers to my to cut US aid to Pakistan, targeted at $4 billionin

BELGRADE, (Reuter): Bread and 236 per cent inflation pre-

Shoplifting, begging, scavenging, public suicide bids, vandalism and strikes top the list of growing social problems in a state whose prosperity was once the envy of other communist countries.

As winter sets in, the economic crisis has sent living standards plummeting to a 20-year low, official reports say.

The country's news agency Tanjug last month attacked the ruling communist elite saying they had argued among themselves so much that they had lost sight of the hardships faced by ordinary people.

It said Yugoslav leaders pushed the country "to the brink of despair" and "forced them to line up for bread." "We want bread" was a common slogan in 800 labour strikes this year. Openness

President Josip Broz Tito, who died in 1980, created his own brand of "workers' self-management" socialism and a policy of openness to the West, and the Western credits. By the 1970s, Yugoslavs had learned to live it up, by example of Tito's own lifestyle, as he hopped from one villa to another by private jeropyacht Millions had left their farms to enjoy urban comfort. "We've never had it better," was the apt slogan of the day. A consumer boom fuelled by Western credits let Yugoslavs spend lavishly on luxury villas, foreign cars, Western fashions, and overseas holidays.

But now Yugoslavia is struggling to service its $21 billion debt, inflation has soared, nnemployment has risen, and strikes have erupted.

Attacks

The admiration of the Yugoslavs for Tito's exuberance has turned into anger against the shiny black limousines used by top communist officials. The press carries constant attacks on corruption and privileges.

The inflation rate is the highest in Europe. Many basic food-stuffs tripled in price over the past year, while the maximum annual pay rise allowed today is 140 per cent.

"In the 1970s we had never had things better, but now we feel the pinch, we feel we've never had it so bad," said a 40-year-old mother of three. "We are cating half as much as meat as we could afford last year. We only ear lean meat ooce or twice a mooth."

The remittances of overseas Yugoslavs help them along, or they earn "grey mooey" moonlighting. But it is not that easy for everyone.
Police recently reported three cases of people turning them-selves into human torches in desperate suicide bids lioked to poverty and unemployment. They said shoplifting was becoming more common, along with fights between hard-up customers and shop staff, and scuffles in the early morning queues for the cheapest kind of bread. Shops now keep expensive items like coffee and cosmetics closer to the cash registers. Once rare, begging and scavenging is now common. In Serbia, the biggest republic in the Yugoslav federation, abor-

Yugoslavia's eight regions, whose differing ethnic compostioo and economic levels set them at each other's throats. Last month Yugoslavs bent their ears to radio and television sets hoping that the ruling Communist Party might announce a

For some Japanese, the attitude of the Imperial Household Agency is an uncomfortable remnant of the pre-World War II era, when the Emperor was kept totally apart from the people and was treated as a divine figure in accordance with ancient myths.

The functioning of the imperial institution contradicts democracy, because "it is not open," says eritie Rev Masahiro church and state relatioos.

The agency has the primary responsibility for shaping the cootent of the Emperor's role. "The agency is proud of its secretive system, which keeps the public. Compared to the prewar period, recent years have seen a far more active Emperor, appearing regularly at public functions.

But life of the royal family still largely goes on in the distant surroundings of the Imperial Palace, to which the public has almost no access. Within the palace, the Emperor still performs rituals associated with the ancient beliefs of ancestor worship and Shintoism, Japan's

"The principle of the agency is oot to tell anything happening inside the imperial institution, commeots veteran reporter Hiroshi Takahashi, who has written a book on the subject.

Takahashi compares the news being provided about the Emperor's condition to what was given 60 years ago. "The information provided by the Imperial Household Agency is exactly the same that was offered when the emperor of the Taisho Era was dying (in 1926)," says Takahashi, who reports for Kyodo News Service. "The only improvement is that the official (who provides the information) appears in front of the reporters." Tension over this issue surfaced at one point a few weeks ago when Grand Steward Shoichi Fujimori, who beads the agency, rebuked reporters for publishing information leaked trickle of information coming out of the kunaicho. The chief cabinet secretary publicly requested the agency to open up more, hut to little apparent effect. And, according to cabinet sources, the government is unhappy with the reports it has been receiving directly from the agency. In fact, to date, no government official outside the Imperial Household Agency has even been allowed to see the Emperor, although he has been well enough to receive short

Descendant

The agency is a direct descendant of the prewar Imperial Household Ministry, a cabinetlevel organisation. Under the postwar reforms, it was downgraded to an office attached to the prime minister's office, with the grand steward appointed by the prime minister.

The agency has 1,130 employees, with an annual budget of about $90 million. The imperial family, unlike the British royal family, for example, has no source of income other than that annual budget. Most of it — $66 million in the last fiscal year - went to the administrative costs of the agency, which includes the upkeep of the imperial palaces and various official functions. The rest, about $24 million, went directly to the imperial family itself. including the Crown Prince and his immediate family.

Though there have been changes, the functioning of the inner core of the agency remaios remarkably unaltered from prewar days. The agency is divided into two parts — the socalled omote, or "front," and the oku, or "back." The grand steward and his administrators are the "front." The "back" consists of the 80-odd people who take care of the daily life of the Emperor and the Empress. Care

The head of the oku is the jijucho, or grand chamberlain, who is assisted by lesser cham-berlains and ladies in waiting. They take care of the Emperor and Empress 24 hours a day," says Kiyoshi Kubo, who covered the agency for the leading daily Yominri Shimbun. The oku includes the maids and others who serve meals, change their clothes, and clean their rooms. It also ioclodes the court physicians.

The Emperor would typically spend part of his day in his palace office dealing with his limited official duties, such as signing documents. "If the Emperor has a question to ask while workiog," explains Kubo, "these chamberlains will help him and, if necessary, contact the omote." During the Emperor's illness, Grand Chamberlain Satoru Yamamoto has controlled all access to him and the flow of information about his condition. Indeed, the grand steward himself did oot see the Emperor until several weeks after he fell ill. These officials carefully script the Emperor's public appearances, including his ceremonial meetings with visiting heads of state. By tradition, when the Emperor meets such a guest, the contents of the discussion are oever disclosed. The grand chamberlain and the grand master of ceremonies attend such meetings and afterward brief the Controls.

According to Takahashi's book, these careful controls have caused a few incidents. When China's Deng Xiaoping visited Japan and met the Emperor for the first time, the Emperor started the meeting by apologizing for Japan's war against China-Japanese papers, Takahashi wrote, criticised the Emperor for his failure to apologise, only to fied out later from Chinese reports that he had in fact done

Documentary highlights plight of women arrested under Pakistan's 'Zina Ordinance'

When a woman's word doesn't count ...

By Shyama Perera

A 13-YEAR-OLD girl is abducted and gang raped by some men in her village.

Because she is a female, her word cannot be accepted as evidence in a court of law. The men claim she was willing. The girl is sentenced to five years imprisonment for leading them into fornication.

The scenario is not fantasy. It is just one of the examples of the mjustice and inhumanity of Pakistan's "Zina Ordinance" - the Islamic law which defines adultery, fornication and rape as heing crimes against the state.

To add to the complexity, the evidence of women has been inadmissible since 1983. Therefore, all it needs is an accusation of adultery by a husband to put his wife behind bars. The harshest penalty for this crime is death by stoning. It is these issues that are addressed in a new UK Channel 4 film. Who Will Cast the First Stone. Shot secretly in Pakistan and smuggled back to England for editing, the 52minute documentary studies the case histories of a number of women incarcerated under

"Over 3,000 women are affected by the Zina Ordinance every year. Even in rape cases. the women are considered responsible for initiating the act.

The minimum penalty is 30 lashes. They get no legal aid and most have no access to a lawyer," explains Sahiha Sumar, a Karachi journalist who, wrote and co-produced. the film which made its debut at this year's London Film Fes-tival.

Romance and the single mother

By William Lowther

A HARROWING new Diane Keaton film on sex and the singie mother may cause millions of women to re-evaluate the balance between romance and raising a child.

Where Fatal Attraction concerned a married man's affair withanother woman, The Good Mother is about a divorced mother who takes a lover and loses her child as a result.

• Should a divorced father have any control over his for-mer wife's lifestyle when she has custody of their child? Should a divorced woman with a young daughter allow her new lover to live in? How open, how sexually free, should any couple be in the presence of children?

Miss Keaton, 42, is getting rave reviews for her portrayal of Anna Dunlap in this adapta-tion of Sue Miller's best-selling 1986 novel

Anna is devoted to her sixyear-old daughter Molly and the two live in Boston.

Anna's life revolves around being "a good mother." The desire to be a passionate, sexy person had always been latent inside her, but she had never been erotic, especially with her ex-husband Brian.

And then she meets Leo, an artist, played hy Irish-born Lam Neeson.

Diane Keaton's new film The Good Mother is about a divorced woman who takes a lover and loses her child as a result. The film is causing a terrific stir in the US and brings into focus many questions long left unanswered when a marriage breaks up and there are children involved. Not since last year's Fatal Attraction has a film had the potential for such impact and shock.

She falls unreservedly in love: repressed divorcee becomes sensuous woman.

The new boyfriend moves in and forms an easy rapport with

One night when Molly awakes with a nightmare, Anna lets the girl climb into bed with her and Leo as they continue to make love.

Leo sits on the bathroom floor reading aloud from children's books as Anna and Molly splash together in the

And then, when Anna is working late, Molly walks into the bathroom while Leo is taking a shower. She sees him nude, and asks if she can touch

He lets her do it because, as he explains later, he doesn't want Molly to have hang-ups about sexual matters.

But Molly tells her father. And he, infuriated because Anna has told him he was a terrible lover, goes to court to gain custody of Molly on the grounds that she is living in moral danger. In the process,

Anna loses everything. The film goes to the heart of America's new morality.

For in this country of eight million single mothers, balanc-ing romantic affairs with the duties of being a good mom. can be a major domestic problem.

Miss Keaton says: "It's not as simple as you have sex and you enjoy it, and you pay. Sex in Anna's case is not bad, just badly handled.

"She just lets go, and so late in life. This is the sort of thing yon do in adolescence, not in middle life.

Miss Keaton, who has been linked with men as diverse as Woody Allen and Warren Beatty, hut who has never married, adds: "I don't if it's such a good idea to have a child in bed with you when you're making love. That's really a tough one."

The Good Mother is directed hy Leonard Nimoy, best known as Star Trek's Mr Spock.

He says: "We have a tough time in our society dealing with the idea of sexuality in a mother.

We understand that after a divorce the father can immediately go out and bounce from bed to bed. But with the mother it's, "Now wait just a minute, let's talk about this. How active is she going to be! Does the kid know about this?" and so on. It really is the Madonna/whore question, which is ancient." But when it comes to the question of right or wrong, Nimoy dances away. He says: There are people who will say that Brian, the former husband, is absolutely right and Anna made a hig mistake. "And there are people who will say he's an uptight pain who doesn't want the kid at ali and who's only getting back at

"There are people who will say that Leo did exactly the right thing and there are people who will say that Leo should be similar to the one in the film. She said: "Children are forced to grow up too quickly. They should not be invited into the adult world prematurely. "Children should not be brought into bed where there is love-making. Nudity is OK, if no big deal is made about it.

Dr Maureen Kearney, a psychologist at the Centre of Personal Enrichment in Washington, deals daily with situations

(Reuter): High fashion, French style, has crept into the nursery.

A Christian Dior handemhroidered christening gown is a classic choice for royal babies, while sweatsuits and colourful co-ordinates from designers like Sonia Rykiel and Kenzo are the latest thing for the younger set.

Just as French designers often set the trends in ready-towear for men and women, the label 'Made in France' has a special cachet for babies.

At least seven of Paris' bigname high fashion designers now have an infant or children's line, and brands that French consumers consider medium to upper-range -Petit Bateau, Ahsorba, Catimini and Trotinette — are rated top of the line in other countries, according to industry sources.

Christian Dior is the acknowledged grandfather of deluxe outlits for children, and still specialises in classic French designs such as knee-length velvet trousers for boys and taffeta dreses with hand-smocked yokes and lace-trimmed petticoats for girls. The original idea at Dior's baby boutique, which opened in 1967 as Paris' first designer shop for children, was to create gift items that would attract doting grandparents, godparents and aunts. The shop's top sellers are its bath line for babies in white towelling, with pink or blue-edged robes for 620 francs ($95) and a 170-frane ($27) bib with a baby Dior insignia.

The metre-long silk baptismal gown, tiered with lace ruffles and emhroidered by hand, bears a price-tag of 20,250 francs ($3,215). A cheaper version comes in fine cotton.

The bahy gift idea expanded into custom-made fashions for children up to 12 years old, with new collections each winter and

WHAT makes you happy? If you stop to think about it, sometimes the smallest things can give immense pleasure. Although few of us experience the jumpingup-and-down type of happiness, at least not on a regular basis, most of us, on reflection, can come up with a number of events which could qualify as happy-makers. I analysed my own routine and came up with a few definitions of what happiness is to me. Happiness is surviving computer technology. First I had to learn how to become compatible with my computer, then I had to figure out how to make the computer compatible with the printer. At times, both of them let me know that they still have minds of their own, but I think that's just a sneaky ploy to make me more appreciative when they decide to perform properly. I have to admit, the ploy works. Having several hours of work print out without a hitch inspires a truly special kind of hap-

Happiness is having the school holidays begin. In real terms, this means not having to get up at the crack of dawn to repeatedly warn deaf, sleepy children that they'll miss the school hus if they don't get a move on NOW. It's also a hlessed reprieve from packing.

Happiness is ...

nutritious lunches that will probably be traded for bubble gum cards. Last, but not least, it means no more homework — for me. Apart from the intellectual demands, which often test me to my limit, it's embarrassing not even knowing how to translate some of the instructions.

On a more noble plateau, it's of course wonderful to have the children at home. These long vacation periods give us a chance to spend time together, enjoy each other's company, form special bonds.

Happiness is having the long school holidays come to an end. Right. Enough is enough. Dawn, lunchboxes, and homework being to look good after a few weeks of whinning kids persistently telling me they're bored unless I entertain them 24 hours a day!

Happiness is managing to apply two coats of nail polish without having to redo a single nail. Gone are the days when I could hlame polish smears and flaws on smelly infants who needed urgent nappy changes the minute I was finished putting on the first coat. Now I have to bear full responsibility for my impulsive actions - like deciding to floss my teeth before the polish has hardened. Yes, it's a happy day when I give myself a perfect manicure ... in only one try.

Are you a super slob?

Happiness is receiving real mail (as opposed to junk mail). My neighbour says I produce more correspondence that anyone she has ever known. Unfortunately, the people to whom I write would seem to be seriously remiss in that field. Either that or there's a conspiracy in the post office to destroy any etters addressed to me. N ice I say "letters." That's because they always let the bills through. Happiness is hearing the phone ring, getting to it ahead of a horde of youngsters, and finding that it's actually for me. Of course, if this event happened all the time, it wouldn't be eligible for the happiness definition. Because it's such a rare occurrence, it more than adequately qualifies.

See what I mean? Happiness can be interpreted in many different ways. I haven't even bothered to discuss obviously major happy-makers, such as joh promotions. (In the case of freelances like myself, just having a joh is cause for happy relief.) But we all know that Life does not comprise solely happy happenings. We have to have a few downers to make us more alert when even minor uppers come along. Just to show you what I mean, I've listed a few examples of situations which I classify as desperate.

Desperation is arriving at a hotel after a difficult, dusty journey, anticipating a deep, hot bath ... only to be told that there's water rationing in effect and the supply won't be resumed for another eight hours.

Desperation is being last in a long line waiting to get into a public toilet. Real desperation is finally getting to the front of the line. only to find that you don't have any change to get into the pay cubicle whose door has definitely slammed shut and locked.

Desperation is having to come up with column ideas every week ... and being told that I can't go on holiday until I've produce columns for the entire sum-

Ah well, looking on the positive side, at least in the latter example, I suppose one person's desperation is another person's happiness Presumably my editor feels happy relief when I somehow manage to meet his impossible deadlines ...

(But, then, I get a bit of pleasure, too. I keep him in suspense by waiting until the last minute to make my submissions!)

Investors urged to put their money in productive sectors

DAR ES SALAAM, Nov 22, (AP): President Ali Hassan Mwinyi has urged private investors in put their mnney in productive sectors like agriculture, mining, tourism, fishing and manufacturing to help revive Tanzania's economy.

The economie situation remains critical and will remain the main challenge for sometime to come," said Mwinyi in an interview, the independent weekly Financial Times published yesterday.

"We want, and encourage, private sector investment in these and many nther areas of nur economy," he said. Mwinyi was asked if he was happy with the flow of private capital investment. In short," he answered, "lam not happy. Some private sector investment is already taking place, but it is not enough.

Investors

Local and foreign investors were put off in 1967 by the government's nationalisation of banks, insurance companies, tea, coffee and sisal plantations, some hotels, mines and major industries.

Tanzania, a fnrmer British colony, pursued socialist economie policies after gaining independence in 1961. Julius Nyerere, Tanzania's first president, resisted reform proposals, mainly from the international Monetary Fund. Mwinyi, who succeeded Nyeters, signed the country's first agreement with the IMF in 1985. He signed the second agreement on Nov 4. Details of the second agreement were not publicised, but the government devalued the currency, by 21 per cent two days later. The value of the shilling has gone dnwn by 200 per cent over the past three years. Mwinyi said the government hopes to gain private investors' confidence when an investment code being drafted is completed

Foreign financial institutions must observe Kuwaiti rules

KUWAIT, Nov 22, (KUNA): Foreign hanking and financial corporations operating in Kuwait were told to abserve the country's standing rules governing banking and financial activities.

An appeal in this respect was made by the Kuwait's Finance Minister Jassim Mnhammed Al Khorafi and the Kuwait Central Bank Governor Sheikh Salem Abdul Aziz Al Sabah.

Responding to a questinn by KUNA on a recent announcement published in the local press by a foreign bank that it was ready to carry out, in Kuwait, banking operations for the interest of the father bank it represents, Finance Mini-ster Al Khorafi said that Kuwait has standing regulations governing the work of the banking profession.

Regulations

"These regulations are aimed at the protection of banking activities for the interests of the national economy and depositors," he said. "For this reason we demand foreign banking and financial institutions to observe the existing rules so as to avoid any problems," Al Khorafi

The finance minister stressed that his ministry will not besitate to take all necessary measures to enforce the law. The Central Bank Governor Sheikh Salem said Article 59 of the 1968 Law

Nn. 32 which governs banking activities in Kuwait, banned any fureign banking nr financial establishment or its representative from practising any banking activities inside Kuwait in favour of those establishments.

He said the Central Bank of Kuwait would not allow any foreign party, what-soever, to practise any direct or indirect banking activity for its own interests, hence violating the Kuwaiti rules of the banking profession.

Violation

He said the recent announcement in the local press by a foreign bank was a clear violation of Article 59 nf the law governing the banking activities in Kuwait.

The Central Bank governor said that he made contacts with the interior ministry which had already taken necessary measures stopping the illegal activity.

Outlook is far from a deep recession

OECD growth rates forecast to slow down to 3pc in '89

THE recession that many economists and financial analysts predicted will be the inevitable outcome of the October 1987 crash has failed to materialise so far, and is very unlikely to happen in 1989. According to Gulf Bank March '88 commentary that "many of the economie indicators which are normally associated with recession either do not exist at present or are not strong enough to cause serious imbalances leading to reces-

This conclusion seems to be still valid. This is due to the fact that economie fundamentals have greatly improved beyond expectations.

Reason The Gulf Bank current monthly commentary said the main reason which explains why the world economy did not fall into a recession after the October 1987 crash is that central banks have played a very active role in pumping a great deal of money into the financial markets to sustain a reasonable level of liquidity and is supporting co-ordination of monetary policies to prevent wide currency fluctuations. The lesson of the 1929-32 Great Depression seems to be well lear-

Growth GDP growth rate in the US is estimated to be about 4 per cent in 1988, compared with a revised 3.4 per cent in 1987. It is likely to fall below 3 per cent in 1989. Japan's GDP is to grow by 5.2

per cent this year compared with 4.2 per cent in 1987, and is likely to fall to 4.2 per cent in 1989. West Germany, is also expected to achieve a higher rate of growth this year (about 3 per cent) compared with 1.8 per cent in 1987 but likely to fall to 2 per cent in 1989. The UK is expected to maintain its growth rate of 4.2 per cent achieved in 1987, but it is likely to fall to about 3 percent in

However, the six-year-old expansion of the world economy (which is the longest ever sustained period of recovery in peace time) is bound to be threatened but unlikely before

Although growth rates in major OECD conntries are forecast to slow down to 3 per cent in 1989, but the outlook is far from a deep recession.

Capacity Nevertheless, if the overall industrial capacity utilisation rate in the US exceeds the red line-limit (85 per cent) considered inflationary, as more capital spending will be required to match increasing demand which will in turn push prices higher, then an overheated US economy will start sending warn-inflation" in the countries that trade heavily with the US. Being currently at 5.3 per cent, there is limited scope for a further decline in the unemployment rate ing signals.

Higher prices in the US will lead to the so-called "imported in the US without triggering higher inflation. Continued economie growth, leading tn higher capacity utilisation and lower unemployment rates, has shifted the focus of attention away from recession towards inflation. The report said that interest rates are likely to be higher in 1989 in an attempt to slow down economic expansion to a sustainable rate. It should be emphasised that if international trade is to be looked at as a two-way street, then surely trade-surplus countries will not be able to sustain their surpluses in the long run as this will entail weakening their major trading partners. Based on this dynamie vision of unrestricted world trade, the long-awaited decline in the US trade deficit may be understood. The US trade deficit is likely to fall this year to about $132 billion com-

Depreciation There is little donht that the depreciation of the US dollar (which began in February 1985) was the driving force behind the process of reducing external imbalances which started late 1987 after nearly three-year time pared with $160 billion in 1987.

On the other hand, the improvement in the US trade deficit since the beginning of 1988 has been accompanied by a rise in the dollar against some other major currencies. If the US currency continues to appreciate further in the coming year (which is unlikely) it will he difficult for the US industry to sustain its competitive edge in the world markets and therefore the US trade balance will start to worsen again, which will, in turn, push the dollar lower.

Payments

It should also be added, that rising interest payments abroad to service the increasing level of US net foreign debt will make it difficult for the US to improve its current account deficit sig-nificantly. Despite some notable improvement, the current accounts for major industrial conntries are still seriously imbalanced.

The US current account deficit is expected to be in the range of $135-140 billion in 1988 compared with $154 billion in 1987.

1t is likely to fall further in 1989 to about $125 billion. Whereas Japan and West Germany are expected to record surpluses ranging between $80-85 billion and $40-42 billion in 1988 compared with about $87 billion and $44.5 billion in 1987 respectively.

Although the world economy is expected to continue growing in 1989, the rate of growth will most likely be lower than in 1988. This is mainly attributed to the fact that the US is yet to deal more effectively with its huge twin trade and budget deficit. The dollar will have to move lower in the coming months in order to narrow the trade gap further, especially with Japan and the NIC's (Newly Industrialised Countries) in East Asia.

It is to be pointed out that as the pattern of capital investment booms is very cyclical, then high growth rate cannot be sustained for a longer period of time and thus, a slowdown in economic activities in most likely in the short-term.

Furthermore, having become more and more concerned about curbing inflation, central banks in some major industrial countries, especially in the UK will be tempted to push interest rates

As for the US economy, it cannot maintain a growth rate of 3 per cent annum and at the same time keep the value of the dollar at its current high level, unless foreign capital inflow is to be continued vis-a-vis high interest

However, interest rates in Japan and Germany are more likely to edge lower for different reasons, the most important of which is to stimulate domestic demand. Thus, a great deal of coordination between monetary and fiscal policies will be needed in major industrial countries in the near future.

The report added that if there is a lesson to be learned from the October 1987 stock market crash it is that central banks in major industrial countries have used accommodative monetary policies in a far more effective way than before.

Bidding for RJR Nabisco hits new peak, shares climb

NEW YORK, Nov 22, (Reuter): The richest corporate auction in NEW YORK, Nov 22, (Reuter): The richest corporate auction in US history grew richer as a new group prepared to after more than $25 billion for RJR Nabisco Inc, pushing the food and cigarette giant's shares sharply higher on the New York Stock Exchange yesterday. RJR Nabisco's board on Sunday unsealed higher bids from two previous bidders and revealed that a new group headed by the Wall Street firm First Boston Corp had submitted a tentative proposal to pay up to $25.3 billion in cash and an additional 1.6 billion in securities for the company. Bidding for RJR Nabisco began a month ago with a $17 billion offer from a group of the company's managers. That hid worked out to $75 per group of the company's managers. That bid worked out to 575 per share, well above the company's high of $51 in September. "It's (the bidding) starting to look like it's closer to fair value, in the $100 (per share) area," said analyst Rouald Morrow of Smith Barney, Harris Upham Inc. The near doubling of RJR Nabisco's share price since September reflects the unrealised value that can share price since September reflects the unrealised value that can be uncovered by selling off the company's many brands, ranging from Winston eigarettes to Del Monte canned fruits and vegetables, analysts said. "There's a bonauza for people who own the stock," said Kidder Peabody analyst Roy Burry. The news that new ground had been broken in weekend bidding sent RJR Nabisco's stock higher yesterday, up $2.25 to $86.25.

The First Boston Group emerged as the dark borse leading a pack of Wall Street leveraged buyout groups and investment bankers that have been pursuing RJR Nabisco over the past month. The new group includes Resources Holdings Ltd, which is backed by the wealthy Pritzker family of Chicago and the Auschutz family of Denver. Their proposal would pay $98 to 110

Arab banks consider deterrent measures against Europe

ABU DHABL, Nov 22, (AP): Senior Arab bankers have hinted at adopting deterrent measures against Western Industrialised countries for including Arab countries among imancial high risk zones. The Basel Committee, a specialised committee named after the city in Switzerland where it meets, listed loans to the Third World, including Arab states, as a high risk, and is expected to come into effect on Dec 31, 1992. The decision was approved by the 12 ranking industrialised nations of the world. "It is unfair of the industrialised countries to treat Arab banks in this way although they have sufficient capital adequacy ratio," said Anwar Al Khalil, board chairman of the Union of Arab Banks (UAB) at the end of a three-day Arab banking conference in Abu Dhabi late yesterday. Speaking on behalf of the leading 100 Arab banks represented at the meeting, Al Khalil said "It is as if the Basel Committee wanted to punish the Third World countries including the Arab states, after they become capable of providing for their financial needs." During the oil boom of the 1970's some Arab countries turned into financial powers. The Basel Committee recommendation "is telling Arabs that what the Europeans own, belongs to them, and what the Arabs own belong to them and to the peans," he said. Asked about the deterrent measures available to the Arab banks against the recommendation, he said: "We may start with reciprocal treatment, which will be effective due to the clout Arabs have in the international financial sector." Al Khalil also called for creating proper channels to bring home some of the $300 billion of Arab investment abroad.

"Natural gas will be one of the most important aspects of the talks," the Turkish official said. Soviet officials have complained that Turkey is not taking its agreed quota of natural gas from a pipeline which went on stream across the Bulgarian frontier 16 months ago. Turkey signed an agreement in 1984 to buy up to six billion cubic metres of gas a year by 1992. It agreed to take 1.5 billion cubie metres in 1988 but actual volume is likely to be around 400 million cubic metres, mainly because of a fall in world prices, official sources said. Turkey also agreed this year to buy a total of four billion cubic metres of gas a year from Algeria and Libya. Diplomats said this followed US pressure to avoid over-reliance on Moscow. A bargaining chip for Turkey is wheat and barley sales, partly to nffset the natural gas imports. It hopes to sell 500,000 tonnes next year after 350,000 tonnes in

Interest

Turkish contractors have won big Soviet contracts as part of Moscow's agreement to spend 70 cent of its gas earnings on Turkish goods and services. Enka Holdings and Soviet partners are due to start work in April on a 1,000-bed hospital in Moscow and to refurbish the city's historie Petrovsky passage. The contract is worth $80 million to Enka.

Hope
The Turkish firm Knray-Baytur started work this week on a $45-million holiday village on the Soviet Black Sea coast and other companies hope to build health resort hotels. Cross-border road trade and tourism are also likely topics at the six-day Ankara talks following the official opening of their sole civilian crossing at Sarp on the Black Sea coast in August. It had been closed since 1937.

The Soviet delegation will be led by Foreign Economic Rela-tions Minister Konstantin Katushev and the Turkish team by Finance Minister Kurtcebe Alptemocin.

Meanwhile, Jordanian Trade and industry Minister Hamdi A Tabaa left for Ankara today for talks he said were aimed partly at narrowing a trade gap now in Turkey's favour.

Tabaa told the official news agency Petra the Turkish-Jor-danian economie co-operation committee would also look at ways to increase trade and improve the quality of goods exchanged. Officials in Ankara said the committee, led nn the Turkish side by State Minister Kamran Inan, would discuss closer ties in tourism, communications and transport. They said the committee, meeting for the third time, would probably sign a protocol at the end of its four-day session.

Tabaa said Jordanian exports to Turkey were worth about six million dinars $3 million in 1987, compared to imports worth 38 million dinars ($19 million).

London Stock Market Report

U.K. STOCKS NIT DAY'S HIGHS ON FIRMER WALL STREET LONDON, NOV 22, REUTER - EQUITIES HIT THEIR DAY'S NIGHS THIS AFTERNOOM AS WALL STREET RALLIED FROM AN EASIER START TO STAND FIRMER. BUT TRADING REMAINED SUBDUED AREAD OF FRIDAY'S OCTOBER U.K. BALANCE OF PAYMENTS DATA.

SHARES TRADED MOSTLY NIGHER EARLIER ON THE BACK OF A WALL STREET RALLY YESTERDAY. NEWS OF A PACKAGE FROM ABBEY LIFE TO SWEETEN THE PROPOSED MERGER WITH LLOYDS WHICH ABBEY SHAREHOLDERS RECENTLY VOTED DOWN ALSO NELPED SENTIMENT, DEALERS SAID

HOWEVER, ONE CAUTIONED "IT'S A PRETTY RALF-HEARTED RISE. IF WALL STREET SNEEZED WE'D STILL GET A COLD". BY 1532 GMT THE FTSE 1CO WAS 9.1 POINTS UP AT 1,820.S, AFTER A HIGH OF 1,821.2. ABBEY STOOD SOME 26P NIGHER AT 294 THIS AFTERNOON, HELPED BY NEWS ITS TOTAL DIVIDEND FOR 1988 WOULD RISE 32 PCT TO 13.5P AND THAT IT WAS PLANNING A SPECIAL DIVIDEND OF 15P PER SHARE IF THE

LLOYDS! MERGER GOES THROUGH. THE ORIGINAL PROPOSAL TO SELL FIVE LLOYDS BUSINESSES TO ABBEY IN RETURN FOR 57.6 PCT OF THE LIFE INSURER WAS THWARTED BY 64.4 PCT OF ABBEY'S SHAREHOLDERS EARLIER THIS MONTH. ABBEY IS NOW PROPOSING TRAT THE MAJORITY FOR A NEW VOTE ON THE CEAL BE CUT TO 50 PCT FROM THE PREVIOUS 75 PCT.

THE DEAL HAD BEEN SEEN AS BIASED TO LLOYDS BUT ANALYSTS SAID THE NIGHER DIVIDENDS COULD HELP SMOOTH OBJECTIONS.

London Gold

LONDON, NOV 22, REUTER - GOLD BULLION WAS FIXED AT 418.40 DLRS AN OUNCE THIS AFTERNOON, UP FROM THE MORNING FIX OF 416.10 AND MAINTAINING THE NIGHER LEVELS SEEN AT THE END OF THE MORNING

TRADERS SAID SHORTCOVERING HAD BEEN PROMPTED BY NEWS THE IRANIAN OIL MINISTER SAID OPEC WILL END ITS TALKS ON WEDNESDAY WITH AN AGREEMENT. A RALLY IN SILVER PRICES ALSO AIDED GOLD'S RECOVERY FROM MORNING LEVELS AS LOW AS 415.00 DLRS.

SILVER WAS FIRMER AT 6.10/6.12 DLRS AFTER A FIX OF 606.50 CENTS WHILE PLATINUM RALLIED TO AN AFTERNOON FIX OF 569 DLRS FROM A MORNING FIX OF 558.75 DLRS.

London Money Market

LONDON, NOV 22, REUTER - MONEY MARKET INTEREST RATES CONTINUED VIRTUALLY UNMOVED FROM MONDAY'S LEVELS IN LATE TRADING AS OPERATORS SEARCHED IN VAIN FOR NEW FACTORS. INTERBANK RATES FROM THREE MONTHS TO ONE YEAR CONTINUED BID AT A COMMON 12-1/8 PCT -- WELL WITHIN THE RANGE WHICH REFLECTS

THE CURRENT 12 PCT LEVEL OF U.K. BASE RATES. "I CAN'T SEE ANYTHING CHANGING THIS SIDE OF CHRISTMAS, IT'S GOING TO TAKE SOME VERY BAD NEWS ON THE TRADE FRONT ON FRIDAY TO GET THE MARKET GOING," SAID ONE DEALER. U.K. BALANCE OF PAYMENTS DATA FOR OCTOBER ARE THE CMLY MAJOR BRITISM INDICATORS TO BE PUBLISHED THIS WEEK.

Wall Street Market Report

NEW YORK, Nov 22, (Reuter) - Wail Street stocks turned mixed after the failure of a rally led by blue chip bargain hunting. But programmes helped the attempt, then faded, traders said. The market fell in early trading on a drop in bond prices due partly to higher than expected October consumer prices. Bonds fell further on rising oil prices and a weaker dollar, dealers said. The Dow was up two at 2068 and has traded between 2059 and 2075. Decliners opened up a lead over gainers and trading was thin. Asset management partners managing director David Mulanaphy said the market tried to gain on bargain hunting but many Individual stocks were weak.

KD deposits firm as liquidity tightens

KUWAIT, Nov 22, (Reuter): Kuwaiti dinar interbank deposits firmed amid tightening liquidily today as banks covered year-end positions.

71 121/11

Dealers said an influx of funds from government salary peymeots was ebsorbed by dollar buying as some traders sold dinars to take out positions in the US currency.

In the fixed periods, business was reported mainly in one to three-month deposits but there were many more enquiries than

Overnight funds rose sharply to eight, seven per cent from six, 5-1/2 on Sunday and by mid-day well-offered et eight per cent. One-week was quoted in a wide range of nine, seven per cent. Deposits

One-mooth deposits firmed to 7-3/4, 1/4 per cent from 7-3/8, 6-7/8, and dealt at 7-5/8 per cent. Three-months firmed 1/4 point to 7-1/2, seven per cent while sixmonths to one-year were little changed at 7-1/4, 6-3/4 per cent. The Central Bank adjusted its dinar exchange rate firmer 10 interbank deposits fluctuated in thin two-way trade today but nn clear trend emerged tn give the market direction.

Dealers said some kingdom banks pared back long dullar positions early in the day, bringing an influx of liquidity into the market and pushing loog-term rates down by 1/16 to 1/8 point.

Borrowing demand later to the day helped eliminate offers for fixed period funds, exerting upward pressure. But overall the market was quiet.

Approach

"People are generally adopting a cautious approach," one dealer said. One-month funds eased to 9-1/

2, 3/8 per cent from 9-5/8, 3/8 then recovered to yesterday's levels. Three-months eased 1/16 point to 9-11/16, 5/8 per cent then firmed to 9-3/4, 5/8. Sixmonths and one-year both slipped 1/16 point to 9-9/16, 7/16 per cent then recovered to 9-5/8 1/2. Overnight traded at 8-1/2, eight per cent while spot-oext eased around one percentage point to 8-3/4, 1/4. One week was quoted at 9-1/2, nine per cent. The spot rival eased to 3.7515/ 19 to the dollar from 3.7506/09 yesterday but this mainly reflec-ted technical adjustment.

Britain aims for $50b utilities sell-off

LONDON, Nov 22, (Reuter): Britain's ruling Conservatives annunced today they planned to sell off the country's electricity and water utilities in offers which could swell state enflers by up to £27 billion ($50 billion).

The plans lie at the heart of right-wing Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher's vision of a share-owning society in which government has a reduced role.

They were annuneed in an address by Queen Etizabeth at the formal opening of a new sessinn of Parliament in which the government traditionally outlines its legislative programme.
The fintation of shares in early 1990 in the electricity generation and supply industry would dwarf previous privatisations, bringing n arnund£17 tn 20 billinn ($3t tn 37 billion), share analysts said.

Investments

Since coming to power in 1979, Thatcher has sold off to private investors the state's shares in the telecommunications and natural gas utilities, national airline British Airways and energy multinational British Petroleum.

The sell-off of Britain's 10 water authorities, expected to raise between £5 and seven billion ($9 and 13 billinn), will start in November, 1989, the government said.

The sell-nff of national assets is certain to be attacked by the oppositioo Labour Party but the Conservatives enjoy a 100-seat majority in the Lower House of Commons and cao be sure of passing-any measures-unless their own members revolt.

Resolve

The Queen's speech underlined the Conservatives' resolve to maintain its basic economic policy of fighting inflation.

"My government will continue to pursue firm financial policies designed in bear down nn inflation. They will enntinue to promote enterprise and in faster the conditions for the sustained growth of nutput and emplnyment," the Queen said.
"They will maintain firm enn-troi of public expenditure so that ... it continues to fall as a proportion of national income, thus providing senpe for further reductions in taxation, as and when prudent," she said.

In London equities hit their day's highs this afternoon as Wall Street rallied from an easier start to stand firmer. But trading remained subdued ahead of Friday's October UK balance of payments data.

Shares traded mostly higher earlier on the back of a Wall Street rally yesterday. News of a package from Abbey life to sweeten the proposed merger with Lloyds which Abbey shareholders recently voted down also helped sentiment, dealers said.

However, ooe cautioned "It's a pretty half-hearted rise. If Wall Street sneezed we'd still get a cold." By 1532 GMT the FTSE 100 was 9.1 points op at 1,820.8, after a high of 1,821.2.

Abbey stood some 26p higher at 294 this afternoon, belped by news its total dividend for 1988 would rise 32 per cent to 13.5p and that it was planning a special dividend of 15p per share if the Lloyd's merger goes through.
The original proposal to sell five Lloyds businesses to Abbey in return for 57.6 per cent of the life insurer was thwarted by 64.4 per cent of Abbey's sharebolders earlier this mooth. Abbey is oow proposing that the majority for a new vote on the deal be cut to 50 per cent from the previous 75 per

The deal had been seen as biased to Lloyds but analysts said the higher dividends could belp smooth objections.

A reappraisal of the quality of the Lloyds businesses, as well as reduced majority requirement, means the new package is likely to receive share-hodler approval, analysts said. Another factor beloing Abbey shares was its proposal to pay a total 1989 dividend of 17 per cent per share and keep dividends from 1990 oowards broadly in line with earnings per share.

Paper aviation -no child's play

The art of making paper planes is a science to Dr Ninomiya, a retired Japanese engineer whose books on paper-airplane design are best-sellers in Japan. He spends more than 10 hrs a day building, flying and photographing them.

BOSTON: The sensei (master) of paper airplanes can'l recall anything unexpected happening while flying one. "Always, something expected happens, Yasuaki Ninomiya explains. But the question prompts a reminiscence from Dr Ninomiya, a retired Japanese engineer whose hooks on paper-airplane design are best sellers in Japan. It's the story of the roots of his fame.

On Christmas Eve 1966, his wife spotted a tiny newspaper item: The First Great International Paper Airplane Contest, sponsored hy Scientifie American magazine, was to be held in America the next month. Any Japanese who wanted to enter a plane could bring it to the Pan Am office and Pan Am would fly it to the

"Since I had been making (paper) airplanes from childhood." says Ninomiya, "I made racing planes and put eight of them in a box so as not to be hroken, and asked Pan Am to send them." His planes — among the nearly 12,000 entries from 28 countries arrived in good time to compete in the Pacific Basin division of the contest, held in San Fran-

"I won the grand prize in both duration and distance flights," reports Ninomiya (who requested written questions, and responded enthusiatically in kind — and in Japanese). "Since then, I've beecn living with paper airplanes. The small article was the beginning. I am thankful to my wife." A recent photo-shows a delighted Ninomiya posing in a room of his Yokohama home. The ceiling is thick with parked airplanes, hanging like sleek, white bats from their paper noses. He's been making ami hikohki" for more than haif a century now.

"I am one of those airplane fans who think an airplane is the most beautiful work of art a buman has ever created," he says: "I like everything that relates to airplanes — from a real plane, to a model airplane, to movies in which an airplane appears." He has huilt ruhberband-powered planes, gas-powered models, and radio-controlled eraft. He pilots a real

For 30 years, Ninomiya worked to develop microwave communications for Nippon Telegraph & Telephone. But the prizes he won in 1967 inspired him to bend his research skills toward another development project: the paper airplane. Not surprisingly, he couldn't find a joh doing that. But he concluded that "it is a suitable theme for one person to pursue." So hedid. "Making a paper airplane became a job from just a mere hohhy."

Today, he has the closest thing to a job perfecting paper airplanes. In 1976, the president of AG Industries in Osaka, Japan, met with Ninomiya after seeing his sevenvolume "Collection of High Performance Paper Planes, three million copies of which have been sold in Japan in the last 15 years. Ninomiya became exclusive designer for AG Industries' Whitewings gliders, paper airplane kits distributed in the United States hy the company's subsidiary in Redmond, Wash.

In 1985, Ninomiya served as one of five judges at the Second Great International Paper Airplane Contest, held in Seattle. Since he retired in 1984, paper planes have been Ninomiya's career. He spends more than 10 hours a day huilding, flying, and photographing them.

These are not the foldedpaper darts you threw crook-edly across third-period study-hall. Carefully huilt, Ninomiya's laminated-paper models can be launched with a ruhber-band catapult to soar for half a minute or more. Given just the right conditions of wind and launch, a flight of more than 10 minutes is possihie.

"If you really want to experience, first hand, the joy of flight," he says, "I believe the most exciting opportunity available to most of us is to fly a miniature plane that you've made hy your own efforts. That is why I highly recommend that you make and fly your own paper airplanes

Such advice has certainly been heeded in his native country: Japanese swept eight of the 10 first prizes in the Second Great International Paper Airplane Contest three years ago. The Kinura Cup paper-air-plane competition is held twice yearly in Tokyo, sponsored by a famous Japanese aircraft designer, Hidemasa Kinura. Hundreds of paper-flight enthusiasts gather every other month or so in several Japanese cities. Ninomiya is host to a monthly outing in Tokyo to fly planes and instruct beginners. According to a newspaper survey this spring, flying paper airplanes ranks fourth among Japanese boys as an outdoor activity, and seventh among Japanese children overall. Ninomiya traces this popularity in part to the good showing made by Japanese entrants in the

A NINOMIYA DESIGN: CLIP IT, FOLD IT, FLY IT

Many books on paper flight were published in Japan in the ensuing years, and more soph-isticated laminated-paper designs evolved from foldedpaper models. Japan's origami (paper folding) tradition also plays a part. Far from being an activity only for children, adults also participate in this hobby in Japan.

The science that a knowledgeableadult can apply to a sim-ple delight can be seen in Dr Ninomiya's response to the question, "What are the keys to designing a paper airplane that performs well?"

(Non-aerophysicists may want to skip the next paragraph.)

"A real high-performance glider has a glide ratio of about 50 and a sinking speed around 0.5 metre a second," he says.
"On the other hand, since the Reynolds number of a paper airplane is smaller than that of a real aircraft by more than douhle figures, the gliding ratio of a paper plane is expected to reach only six or seven due to heavy air drag. But as far as the sinking speed is concerned, a lightweight paper airplane can have the speed of about 0.5 to one metre a second, almost the same as that of a real high-performance glider."

The simpler answer: "The most important things in desig-ning a real or a model aircraft are making the air drag as low as possible and making the airplane lightweight and solid." To anyone interested in designing paper planes, he recommends the study of basic aerodynamics. The Christian Science Moultor

A major advance in personal computing

By Roger Highfield

RECENTLY, Wang Laboratories in the UK unveiled a major advance in personal computing: a system that puts the contents of a desk on screen in facsimile - handwritten documents are rendered realisrather emblematically — enabling them to be manipulated and annotated in handwriting with ecords verbal comments. Documents are fed into ("captured" in the jargon) the Freestyle system with a scanner, a device that converts a document or pictures into the help of an electronic pencil.

Additionally, a telephone digital form. Stamp-sized versions of captured pages can be enlarged, annotated, stored, stapled together, faxed, or filed at the touch of the electronic pencil on a desktop tablet.

Freestyle is not a computer, hut a package of software and hardware to work with existing personal computers. It frees the user from the keyboard and by using forms of communica tion we are naturally used to you can put information into the computer hy writing on the tablet or hy talking to the machine.

Wang says the package is as easy to use as scribbling on paper or chatting on the tele-

Dr Stephen Levine, who heads Wang's design effort, showed how one person could call a table of numbers from a cost proposal onto a screen, circle key figures using the pen and then comment on them using the telephone.

He then played it back and, as the pencil-like lines marked a figure on the screen, his voice came out of the computer repeaung: "If we can hit this number we will do it."

The company believes it will help users (known as "knowledge workers" in its jargon) to communicate because it will allow them to attach their comments directly to documents in whichever form is best suited: handwritten, typed or spoken.

The system, which consists of the tablet, pen, handset, and the necessary software, runs on Wang PCs or any IBM-compauble personal computer.

Giant telescope may reveal secrets of galaxy radio output of our own galaxy. three-km (1.9'mile) track while By Geoffrey Craig

SYDNEY, (Reuter): The secrets of our galaxy may soon be uncovered from a quiet dusty spot in the Australian countryside.

The Australian Telescope, opened last month at Culgoora, 350 km (220 miles) north west of Sydney, may possibly solve the long-standing puzzle of whether a black hole lies at the centre of the Milky Way galaxy. Black holes are believed to be fields of such strong gravitation pall - presumably where a star has collapsed - that matter and energy cannot escape.

The radio telescope is the most powerful in the Southern Hemisphere.
Its radio waves can penetrate the fine dust that bars optical telescopes from viewing the heart of the Milky Way, which passes over Australia but is barely visible in the Northern Hemisphere.

The telescope, which cost $40 million and took 10 years of planning will also study the arge magellanie eloud, at 170,000 light years away, the nearest neighbour to the Milky

Prime Minister Bob Hawke speaks at the opening of the Australian Telescope, a series of 622-metre dishes located at Culgoora, 220 miles north-west of Sydney.

The convex C-120 computer produces clear images, which are then relayed to science laboratories in Sydney. The dishes can be linked to other radio telescopes across Australia, including the Parkes 64-metre dish 320 km (200 miles) further south to form one of the largest networks in the world.

The network, once linked to other antennae around the globe and space telescopes orbiting the earth, would be up to 10,000 times beter than the best optical telescopes now in operation and could effectively form antennae larger than the earth, Jauncey said.

Only about 12 people will operate the telescope, said Dennis Cooper, CSIRO chief of liked them.... until they found out what they were." For some reason, the Western aversion to eating insects is deep-seated. "It's hard to explain why," says DeFoliart, 'except that we've had a stable agriculture for so long, we haven't had to go out and gather food in the fields and "In many of the populations where insects are still used as food, people are still hunters and gatherers—al least partly. They're used to going out to get whatever food they can — and insects are part of that."

The influence of sgrichemical groups may also figure in Westerners' tendency to squirm at the thought of eating insects, DeFoliart says. "It's the idea that if you see an insect, spray it. That the only good insect is a dead insect," he says. He hopes to change that attitude. "We're not trying to convince people that they should eat insects," he says, "But we need to recognize that insects are important as food elsewhere in the world. Plus. they're ecologically sound as a food source. They're much more sound than, say cutting down the rain forests to raise cattle. And nutritionally, they're just as good."

Scientists discover undersea hot spring

By Randolph E. Schmid

WASHINGTON, (AP): Scien tists probing the sea floor off the coast of Oregon have dis-covered a new field of hot springs, mineral deposits and exotic animal life, the National Oceanie and Atmospherie Administration announced recently.

The area offers a new frontier for scientific exploration. according to Peter Rona, chief scientist for the team.

Rona has led NOAA's deepsea explorations in both the Pacific and Atlantic oceans in recent years, discovering a variety of volcanic hot springs in both oceans as well as exotic tube worms and other life

The new finds were made along an underwater mountain range called the Gorda Ridge, ahout 100 miles (160 kilometres) off the Oregon coast. The scientists went as deep as 10,000 feet (3 kilometres) using a Navy deep submergence vehicle.

The finding will allow scientists "to study first-hand how sea-floor hot springs from metallic mineral deposits, sup-port exotic forms of life and influence the ocean environment," Rona said.

Water temperatures in the hot springs were measured as high as 500 degrees Fahrenheit (260 degrees Celsius.)
Rona said that in the area large plates in the earth's crust are being pulled and cracked, allowing sea water to contact with volcanic rocks. The heated water leaches metals from the rock and deposits them on the sea floor. Thickets of tube worms topped with bright red plumes, are growing around the hot springs, the scientists said. In addition they found erahs, octopuses, deep-sea fish and other life forms.

These deep-water vents in the sea floor were only discovered a few years ago when Rona and other scientists began investigating the waters around the United States after President Ronald Reagan proclaimed an exclusive economic

Thistles aim to sting in Gulf tourney

DUBAI: The Cambrian Thisties, one of the star-studded sides appearing in the Gulf's biggest international rugby sevens tournament, have arrived in Dubai and are ready to provide stiff opposition in the event hosted by Dubai Exiles.

The multi-talented squad. which includes some of British rughy's leading names, flew in from London to take part in the two day challenge, sponsored by Emirates, the international airline of the UAE, in association with MMI, and beginning

Cambrian Thistles will be one of the teams to watch in the new Emirates International Trophy, while 16 of the premier Gulf side including teams from the UAE, Kuwait, Oman, Qatar, Saudi Arabia and Bahrain will battle it out for the Gulf knockout title and a place in the prestigious

Hong Kong Sevens tournament. Leading the Thistles challenge tour manager Alasdair Macharg. Moments after arriving in Dnbai, the former Scotland star spoke of his team's chances in the competition. "We are all well aware of how tough the Dubai Exiles seven-aside is, but we have a number of top British players in our squad including three of the Bristol side that won the Middlesex Sevens, former England captain Mike Harrison, and Scott Hastings, one of Scotland's best young international players, so we have

Visiting the sevens for the first time. Macharg has seen a great amount of top-class rughy action. Over a period of twelve years the uncompromising Scot was capped 44 times for his country and his experience will be an added boost for the Thistles in their attempts to land the Emirates International Trophy.

Their first match. Set for 4.10 on Thursday afternoon, promises to be one of the matches of the day. Their opponents are the Bahrain-based Warblers, the side which regularly features a strong contingent of rugby's All

Mancini to fight again after 4 years

NEW YORK, Nov 22, (UPI): Former lightweight champion Boom Boom' Mancini will fight for the first time in four years March 6, taking on undefeated Hector Camacho in Reno. Nevada, the bout's promoter said yesterday. Mancini, 29-3 with 23 knockonts, beld the World Boxing Association lightweight title from 1982-84. The 27-year-old from Youngstown, Ohio, last fought Feh 16, 1985, when he suffered a second straight loss to Livingstone Bramhle. Held Camacho, 26, of Puerto Rico, is 33-0 with 16 knockouts and once held the World Boxing Council lightweight title.

The 12-round fight at the Lawlor Centre will carry a total purse of over $2 million and will be broadcast on a closed-circuit and pay-per-view hasis, promoter Lon Falcigno said. The fighters are scheduled to

2nd Test against Aussies

BRISBANE, Australia, Nov 22, (Reuter): Australia, still in shock following their nine-wicket defeat in the first Test, received more bad news today when they learned West Indies paceman Patrick Patterson would be fit for the second Test.

Patterson, reputed to be the fastest bowler in cricket, bowled just 19 balls in the first Test in Brisbane before bobbling off the field with a knee injury. Unlikely

The other three prongs of the touring side's pace attack, Malcolm Marshall, Curtly Ambrose and Courtney Walsh picked up 19 of the 20 Australian wickets to

Team physiotherapist Dennis Waight said Patterson was unlikely to play in the four-day match against Victoria starting on Friday hut should be fit for the second Test in Perth from

"He has improved out of sight in the past couple of days. He did a bit of bowling in the nets yester-day and pulled up fine," Waight West Indies captain Viv

Richards is expected to be fit to play against Victoria after recovering from aggravating an old ankle injury on the final day

The Victorian match offers Dean Jones a gilt-edged oppor-tunity to reclaim his batting place in the Australian side.

Jones, made 12th man in Brisbane after a poor run with the bat, is first in line to replace Graeme Wood who is expected to be dropped after two failures in the first Test which ended yesterday.

Australian paceman Bruce Reid returned to grade cricket over the weekend but will not be fit in time for the second Test at his bome ground in Perth.

US and Soviet Union agree to test athletes in training

NEW YORK, Nov 22, (Reuter): The United States and the Soviet Union have signed an agreement that could lead to drug testing of US and Soviet athletes in training, the New York Times repor-subject to approval by both National Olympic Committees, outlines a plan that would subject athletes of one country to drug testing by officials of the other country twice a year, the newspaper said.

The document was signed by Baaron Pittenger, executive director of the United States Olympic Committee, and Vasily Gromyko, deputy chairman of the Soviet State Committee for physical culture and sports, it said.

Approval of the agreement would mark a major attempt by each country to eliminate use of performance-enhancing drugs like anabolic steroids, and would help-case-athletes' suspicions, that opponents are benefiting.
The agreement, which is from the substances.

The Times quoted hurdler Edwin Moses, one of four Americans who negotiated the agreement, as saying: "As we develop more details, I think we can begin to reduce the paranoia ween our athletes and those in the Soviet Union."

Logistical details were not included in the document, hut both Pittenger and Gromyko said they expected no problems in settling the details and winning approval, the Times said.

Unity and Starlite triumph

SEVERE EUROPEAN WEATHER TO TEST ITALIAN QUARTET

Napoli give Bordeaux the shivers

BORDEAUX, France, Nov 22, (Reuter): Napoli's rampaging attacking style, highly unusual for an Italian team, has given Bordeaux the shivers before the home leg of their UEFA Cup third round tie tomorrow.

The French side strainer Aime Jacquet, who witnessed Napoli's scarcely credible 5-3 win at Juventus oo Sunday, said: "We are in great danger. Napoli are better than us. I would say about 200 per cent better."

With Diego Maradona pulliog the strings for Brazilian Careca, who hit a hat-trick against Juveotus, and the Italian League's top scorer Andrea Carnevale, Bordeaux's unbeaten run of til European matches looks seriously threatened. Attacking Napoli, who banged in eight in a League game against Pescara last month, are not surprisingly top scorers in Italy.

But their trainer Ottavio Bianchi is almost apologetic about their attacking style, attributing it to the absence of key midfielders Alemao, who has viral hepatitis, and Francesco Romano, who has a hroken leg. "These two are the brains of my team," he said shortly after the team arrived in France. "With them, we play the short ball. Now we are forced to seek other solutions.

Jacquet, faced with the rare problem of having to worry more about a visiting Italian team's forwards than ahout hreaking down their defence, is expected to use veteran midfielder Jean Tigana in an attempt to mark Maradona out of the game.

The Argeotine World Cun captain, his right thigh heavily bandaged, is not fully fit, but played brilliantly oo Sunday and is confident of facing Bordeaux. "I'll be there on Wednesday. I wouldn't miss it," he said. Jacquet is at least as concerned at his own side's poor form. Bordeaux have slipped to ninth io the table, 12 points behind League leaders Paris Saint-Germain and have not won in the champiooship for five weeks.
